AN OCEAN OF OPPORTUNITY

OceanObs’19 is a community-driven conference that brings people from all over the planet together to communicate the decadal progress of ocean observing networks and chart innovative solutions to society’s growing needs for ocean information. This conference will enhance and sustain observation networks by improving the connection between ocean observers and stakeholders. Strategic working sessions and network functions during the conference are designed to identify ocean information, communication systems, innovations, and integration capabilities to best serve user needs at regional, national, and global scales.
